Meet your Behaviorist:

Julie Rocho-Levine is a lifetime animal lover and advocate. She has been working professionally as an animal behaviorist for over 24 years. She has had the privilege of working in loving partnership with marine mammals, birds, fish, cats, horses, dogs and humans. It was through her work as marine animal manager that she developed the skills and experienced the joy of teaching the people to teach the animals. Julie has an extensive knowledge of behavioral science and is well practiced in real world application. Her passion is to facilitate human/ animal bonds that open our capacity to love, and understand one another.
