Meet your Veterinarian:

Dr. Gregg Levine was born and raised in Phoenix, Arizona. He did his undergraduate schooling at the University of Colorado in Boulder and graduated in 1998 from Veterinary School at Colorado State University. He received his certification in Veterinary Acupuncture at Colorado State University in 2007 and his certification in Canine Rehabilitation Therapy at the Canine Rehabilitation Institute in 2015.

When asked what his special interests in veterinary medicine are, Dr. Levine said, "I have a strong interest in integrating veterinary acupuncture, rehabilitation therapy, and herbal medicine to complement traditional veterinary therapy - specifically to treat pain and degenerative conditions. Early intervention with dogs and cats diagnosed with problems with the spine, shoulders, hips and knees will greatly reduce the need for chronic therapy with strong pain and anti-inflammatory medications."
